By deleting the amendatory language of Section 1 in its entirety and by substituting instead the following:

(j) After January 1, 2008, every motor vehicle owner who replaces the registration plate on his or her motor vehicle may deposit the old, outdated, or expired registration plate with the department of revenue or its agents in a manner determined by the commissioner. The department of revenue shall create a program that promotes the recycling of used or outdated license plates for the metal content in such plates. The program shall require that each county courthouse has a site for placing a bin or other container to collect used, outdated or expired registration plates for recycling. Each renewal notice of registration shall contain information regarding the recycling program for license plates. The commissioner may enter into contractual agreements with nonprofit organizations to provide for the collection, disposal and recycling of used, expired or outdated license plates, including the placement and maintenance of recycling bins or containers at county courthouses and other locations frequented by persons replacing registration plates, and the transportation of such registration plates to recycling facilities. Such contractual agreements may allow nonprofit organizations to retain proceeds from such collection, disposal and recycling as an incentive to participation.
